Faculty Mentor of the Month

Each month the Graduate School recognizes and highlights “the important role faculty members play in supporting, encouraging, and promoting an affirmative, inclusive scholarly and teaching environment, while contributing to the professional and personal development of graduate students, and cultivating excellence in scholarship”. In service to this, graduate students can nominate a faculty member they believe should receive this award. Participating in programs such as this help highlight faculty that are supportive to graduate students and rewards faculty who believe in mentorship and fair treatment.
